This is one of two options for a one-day introductory course. See also Introduction to neglect: Option 1. The course is suited to a multidisciplinary audience of staff working both with children and young people and their parents and carers or extended families. It offers practitioners the opportunity to consider neglect from the Assessment Framework triangle domains: child developmental needs, parenting capacity and family and environmental factors. The course supports practitioners when assessing the extent to which parental difficulties (such as domestic violence, parental mental health, substance misuse or learning disability, which are often associated with neglect) affect the parent/carer's functioning (family/environmental factor domain) and the impact on the adult's ability to parent (parenting capacity).

The last session offers you two additional exercise options: E4 is a generic exercise, which allows practitioners to consider the dimensions of the family/environment domain of the Framework; E22 supports staff in understanding that development is a dynamic process shaped by historical factors and interactions between child, family and their environment and enables practitioners to consider the implications of factors such as child poverty.
